$150,000 JOB OFFERED SMITH

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Governor Alfred E. Smith, defeated candidate for president, need not advertise for a job when he retires from the gubernatorial chair on January 1.

New York firms are vieing with each other in offers of situations to the retiring Democratic leader. The salaries offered are well up in five figures and range from $50,000

A number of corporations have declared:

"Governor Smith can name his own salary if he will join us.

Paul Kochanski, Russian Violinist, Visiting Artist.

First of the series of three concerts to be presented this season by the Civic Music association will be offered at the Ceramic theater, Monday night, December 10, when Paul Kochanski, Russian violinist, will appear here.

Tickets to members of the association are now being mailed from the Chamber of Commerce rooms. No single concert tickets will be sold. The fee for adults is $5 and for juniors $3. Seats for the opening concert will be reserved.

The second concert will be held early next year, the date not having been set. The artist appearing here at that time will be Charles Hackett, enor, formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera company. Charles Naegele, pianist, and Miss Gladys Swarthout, soprano, of the Chicago Civic Opera company, will be featured in the final number of the course.

Following an unparalleled season of combined concertising and vacation-ing in Paris, London and Spain, Paul Kochanski returns soon for his sixth American season. Since his victorious debut with the New York Symphony under Walter Damrosch in February 1921 the young violinist has been in constant and growing demand throughout the country and this season finds him launching upon a heavy schedule of engagements from coast to coast In Paris, where the names of Koch-anski is now a household word and his popularity in its tenth year, he gave an unusual number of concerts during the past summer season, including solo and orchestral appear-ances, public recitals and private mus-icales in the salons of eminent Parisians. In London and Spain he also repeated his customary successes and then retired to St. Jean de Luz, that he and Mme. Kochanski spent an energetic fortnight of golf, tennis, swim-

Armistice Day

Memories of ten years ago, when work was suspended business proposition. in factories and business houses and offices while implay, will be revived Monday, when Armistice day will be celebrated throughout the world.

Unlike the noisy observance of 1918, when rejoicing over the end of hostilities in Europe knew no bounds, East Liverpool will quietly celebrate the day. The American Legion plans a banquet at night, while tonight the Veterans of Foreign Wars will give an Armistice day dance. Fraternal societies, too, will sponsor celebrations.

Church bells will toll the armistice hour at 11 o'clock. United States, but, time and again, it has been shown that an amendment, merely by its existence, does not clerks and shoppers offer a prayer for the men who made the supreme sacrifice in the titanic struggle.

For the most part expressions of gratitude over the ending of the mightiest conflict in history will be given the effects of the amendment at all. through patriotic programs, in keeping with the proclamation of President Coolidge, who says:

"I do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all government buildings on November 11, 1928, and do invite the people of the United States two-wheeled carts, acting as the prototype of the mod to observe the day in schools and churches, and other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies, giving ex- tem of the island of Luzon on which Manila is situated pression to our gratitude for peace and the hope and desire that our friendly relations with other peoples may continue."

expression, "a war to end war."

Ohio G. O. P. Victory

To the everlasting credit of the people of Ohio be it said that they have rid themselves of the split-party regime which has held sway at Columbus for the last six years. The electorate determined to give the Republicans the chance they begged for. Now it is up to the Republicans to show the people what competence is possible under unified government.

With Myers Y. Cooper in the executive office, and a Republican general assembly, and Republicans in all the lesser state offices, Ohioans have signified they are tired of that intolerable political situation which has stifled initiation of worth-while statewide projects.

The vote which was accorded Senator Fess and Senator-elect Burton was complimentary to a very large ployed. Manila business men have frequently discussed degree, and a token of the esteem in which they are inauguration of a commercial service which also would held in every section of the state. One has no fear of the ontcome of the election in that quarter. Fess and ton have been under fire, and have acquitted themselves with commendable honor. They will carry on.

This brings us down to the result of the election in Columbiana county and the Eighteenth congressional district. The Republicans carried the county, which is vote, and reelected several county officials. Rein their past records. It is to be expected they will promptly prove as worthy in the future of this trust as they have in the past.

Congressman Frank Murphy will return to Washington knowing that his future political life will be determined solely upon his actions in the next two years. He has ably represented the district for several years.

It seems apparent at this time that Ohio is more overwhelmingly Republican than ever before. In fact, there does not seem to have been a single county which the Democrats carried. Holmes county, for the first time in its political history, indorsed a Republican presidential nominee, and some Republican nnominees for lesser posts. And Wayne county, normally Democratic, is found aligned with the Republicans.

This is an unusual situation, and traceable to only one cause—the belief that Republican principles, backed up by Republican nominees of sterling worth, were superior to Democratic principles, backed up by nominees of the same worth as their political antagonists. Both Wayne county and Holmes county are welcomed into Republican circles. May they find no occasion for regretting their change of political complex on.

Fire Hazards In Air

wisely in calling the attention of the department of commerce to the added hazard of fire resulting from air traffic and asking for some regulatory measure.

It might naturally be thought that people riding in an airplane would realize the great danger of starting a fire by throwing a lighted cigar stub or a cigaret butt from an airplane, a danger which would be considerably au;mented when a plane is passing over a population center, a field of ripe grain or a wooded section in a dry season, but evidently they do not. Evidence of this is to be had in the "No Smoking" signs it has been found necessary to place in the cabins of air passenger ma-

In some states there is a penalty for throwing a lighted cigar stub, cigaret butt, a lighted match or any other burning object from any kind of vehicle used for transportation.

The danger of fires resulting from carelessness by air travelers is not so great now owing to the fact that but comparatively few machines are in operation, but it will probably be a matter of only a few years until air travel becomes common, and when that time comes property will be endangered unless restrictions are provided and enforced. Now is the time to educate the public, when flying as a method of passenger transportion is yet in its infancy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10 .- The Philippines Is ands, the largest and most distant island possession of the United States, have undergone many stages of de velopment since their acquisition following the Spanish-American war. Among the more interesting developments currently are the lack of milk and the presence of alcoholic beverages.

The department of agriculture says that there is no reason why dairy cattle can not be raised successfully in the Philippines and that some are raised there. The grass is abundant, growing all the year 'round and the limate is suitable. But the keenest lack felt by the tion in Pittsburgh. American dwelling in the islands is the practical inabilty to obtain fresh milk. Now, that the American popu lation has materially increased and that many Filipinos have returned after sojourning in the United States for ome years, the demand has greatly strengthened and St. George street, have concluded a in farily deeep front yards-about the dairying is being pointed out as an especially attractive visit in Knoxville.

The health authorities of the islands have made many attempts to induce the native population to raise dairy nue promptu parades were formed, bands hastily organized cattle because milk is needed in the Filipino diet to inand every possible noise-making device brought into crease his resistance to disease. Filipinos drink no milk whatever, living almost entirely on a fish and rice diet

There is a strong reason why milk has never become a part of the native diet. The islands lie not far north of the equator and the climate therefore is warm the year around. Save in Manila and a few other cities there are no refrigeration facilities whatever and milk will not keep sweet longer than a few hours. Americans in the islands especially army and navy officers and civil servants stationed there, are urging that a dairy industry large enough to supply the fresh milk demand be instituted.

The prohibition situation in the Philippines is exceptionally interesting. The Eighteenth amendment extends in theory to the possessions and dependencies of the the Volstead act. In the days of the Empire and for years afterward, everyone in Manila had his horse or pony and cart and drove in the parks every after noon. Also, there were many of these vehicles, chiefly ern taxicab. Today everyone who can afford one drives an American automobile, especially since the road sys is excellent. But the costs still are maintined by the natives.

It appears that the drivers of these vehicles quite de liberately get in the way of automobiles. Filipinos who have been educated in the United States are growing in numbers and constituting an almost separate class which has a very valuable perquisite. The natives, including the merchants, look up on the Filipino who has studied in the states with some thing between respect and awe. It seems only to be necessary to exhibit a diploma from an American institution (and it matters not if it be in law, medicine, divinity, dentisty, osteopathy, or whatnot) and the young Filipino can have about all the credit he vants. first use he makes of this privilege usually is to buy an automobile. Of course, the native Filipino automobile driver does not have so much trouble with the cart invent an air brake for politicians. rivers as the American or foreigner.

Aside from the planes of the army and navy, there is none in the islands and a crying need is felt for commercial and mail air service. The need is greater than on any other American territory. The Philippines comprise hundreds of islands and, there, communication is notably slow. Weeks are consumed in making mail and goods deliveries to some of the less important isles by boat where merely hours would suffice were planes emseek a mail contract, but so far nothing definite has been accomplished.

> Q. What country is the jujube a native of? M. A. S. A. The Chinese jujube (Siziphus jujuba) has been grown in northern China since ancient times. It is one of the five principal fruits of that country, and many excellent varieties have been developed by the Chinese. The tree is deciduous, rather small, and somewhat spiny, with firm, shining-green, oval or oblong leaves one to three inches long. The fruit is a drupe, elliptic or oblong up to about two inches long, with a thin dark-brown skin, and crisp whitish flesh of sweet, agreeable flavor, inclosing a hard two-celled point stone. Although a ew seedling threes were grown in the United States as early as about 1837, it was not until Frank N. Meyer, agricultural explorer, visited China in 1908 that sciins of large-fruited varieties were introduced. As a result of Meyer's work there are now est-blished in California and the southwest a number of the best and largest ruited forms of the jujube.

Disturbances in the glands of the body, or peculiarities in their operation, have a good deal to do with whether we are plump or skinny. But upon our appetite, and its control, depends to a large extent what sort of figures we will have.

To eat everything that appeals and as much as desire dictates, seals the fate of the individual. One cannot eat ravenously and frequently without storing up a surplus.

It is a common thing to excuse indulgence of a hearty appetite by saying: "I don't intend to suffer just for the sake of being thin." But it isn't necessary to suffer. By the propr selection of foods, appetite can be fully satisfied and yet no surplus fat is accumulated. It is only a matter of sticking to it a few days to find out that certain foods, you may have always disliked, are not so bad after all. Look into the matter and see if you cannot arrange a series of meals that will please your appetite and yet regulate your weight.

who imagines that the whole problem of crime will be relegated to past history when once poverty shall cease to exist. Current history, as it is writ ten in Chicago and Philadelphia, and indeed in almost all great cities, bears out no such theory of the origin of crime. Organized gangs of criminals with large capital behind them, build up the criminal business with which large cities have to contend, and the power that their wealth gives them too often places a city governmentor at least certain departments of it -substantially under criminal con

Such gangs are not built out of the kind of human material to be found among the "down nad out" victims of poverty. The poor man who has no well developed criminal instinct in him is not the kind of stuff that the organized criminality of today can safely use; and the man who is poor through physical inability to work successfully is quite evidently not the type to undertake the tasks which make up so large a portion of the crime news that we read in the papers of the present day. If our departments of public safety had to do only with crime which springs from need of something to eat or wear, their worries would be trivial indeed, in comparison with what they really are. The great majority of poor men are not criminals either in fact or in spirit and the ranks of material wealth are furnishing today the hardest problems with which the police and the criminal courts have to deal-Columbus Dis

Standard Lines of Wearing Apparel at Bottom Prices Workingman's Store Policy

Low Price Methods Mean Bargains in Men's Clothing; Complete Array of Winter Needs on Display Now.

"We make an honest effort to provide our patrons with a complete line of wearing apparel, for every season of the year, at extraordinarily low prices on standard advertised brands."

That, without going into a maze of high-power adjectives, describes briefly but forcibly and to the point, the policy of the Workingman's Store, St. Clair avenue, as outlined by the management of the business.

That has been the policy of the establishment over the period of 12 years in which the Workingman's Store has done business in East Liverpool.

While the business has been under a new management the last several years, an even closer adherence to that policy is noticeable in an effort to provide quality wearing apparel at prices which, though low, permit quick turnover.

Of course, at the present time, the Workingman's store is featuring a complete line of winter clothing.

Among their many items may be found clothes for the working man such as overalls, leather jackets and coats, wool and cotton shirts and other necessities for the cold weather looming ahead-

There is an abundant stock of dress and work shoes from which to select, in both low cut and high style.

The Workingman's store carries sweaters and jackets of this character to suit virtually any need. They also have a fine line of hunting outfits and inasmuch as the season opens November 15, it would be timely to go in and inspect their stock while the various lines are complete.

The store has today announced they are closing out their line of overcoats and topcoats at bargain prices, with a view to discontinuing this particular line.

The Workingman's store is willing to compare stocks and prices for their patrons at any time. Courteous, efficient service is pledged with every sale.

The store is just a few steps off the Diamond in St. Clair avenue, handy for everyone.

Leaving the Maryland at Balboa, the Hoover party may go through to the Atlantic seaboard either on the Maryand to Valparaiso, Chile. On his long rail journey across the South American continent he will probably stop at Santiago, the Chilean capital, Lima, the capital of Peru, and then strike out directly over the Andes and across the Amazon to Monevideo and Buenos Aires. On the east coast of South America another battleship will pick him up to carry him north ward, with one or two stops in Central

"I have had the suggestion of a visit to certain Latin-American countries before me for some days. It has been cordially supported by President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg. There are considerations on the time required and other matters which delay final determination for a few days."

Should Hoover return to the United States as late as February 1, he will have but a single month in which to acquaint himself with the day-to-day proceedings of the short session of congress—the last Coolidge congress -which begins the first week in December, and ends March 4. Within this month also he will have to organze his own administration, prepare his inaugural address as well as his message to the prospective special session expected to assemble at Hoover's call almost immediately after March 4, and formulate his adminis-trative and legislative policies.

SEEKS HARMONY

Forget Bitterness of Election.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 .- The memo rable campaign of 1928 has ended, but the forward looking leaders of the Democratic party, including Governor Al E. Smith himself, are already looking toward 1932.

Not that Governor Smith intends to, or would consent to, again being a candidate. He said he never again would James Fetters. Clyde Gunther, Meliness the football game betwee stand for public office. Governor vin Holland, Gus Kirlingitis, John East Liverpool and Martins schools, which will start at 3 c stand for public office. Governor Smith is a very determined man, once he makes up his mind, as was proved on innumerable oceasions during the campaign. Ritchie, the four-time governor of Maryland, whose admiration for Governor Smith led him to eliminate himself in this year's himself in this year's himself in this year's himself in this year race. Ritchie is southern-born, is wet, but also Protestant. His candidacy might throw some interesting light on the question of whether the south bolted Al Smith because of his wetness or because of his Catholicism. Still further south there is Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, ex-jurist, dry, and also Protestant. The Georgia senator has come to be regarded as one of the real leaders of southern political thought.

While the subject of Governor of this address has not been announceed it is understood by his friends that generally speaking, it is to be Smith's swan song" politically.

More than fifteen millions of voters cast their ballots for him last Tuesday. That is an all-time record for a for that vote, and he intends to speak it next Tuesday night.

Governor Smith is expected to reas sure those Democrats who have been fearful of the party's future, in the face of the most crushing defeat it has ever suffered, by pointing to the enormous popular vote it polled this week. No political party, he will contend, that can enlist the support of more than 15,000,000 American voters can be said to be dead, or even dying. Already some of the party leaders are beginning to scan the horizon for new timber for 1932. At the moment ure prominently in this futuristic

CLEVELAND MAN TRAFFIC VICTIM

CLEVELAND, Nov. 10 .- Authorities here today were attempting to determine the manner in which William H. Teare, 50, president of the Teare Limestone company, was killed late yesterday.

The victim's body, with the skull and a number of bones crushed, was picked up from a busy downtown street intersection during a rush hour last night. Various accounts were given by different witnesses.

One man said Teare suddenly fell over backwards, while standing in a safety zone, and that he fell directly into the line of traffic. Others said he was run down by a hit-skip driver, A coroner's autopsy is to be held to day in an attempt to determine whether Teare died naturally and was struck afterwards, or whether death resulted from his being hit by

G. O. P. HOLDS STATE CONTROL

Overwhelming majorities were given the Republican party in both houses and senate of the state legislature by the Republican sweep of West Virginia in Tuesday's election.

Adoption of the legislative amendment to the state constitution provides for a continuous session of 60 days when the legislature convenes in January. Previously the legislature in January. Previously the legislature has met for 15 days for infroduction of bills, adjourned for 30 days and The still was brought to the Brooke of bills, adjourned for 30 days and then re-convened for another session of 45 days.

In the state senate the Republicans seemed assured of 11 new senators, and the Democrats elected two senators, Perry Wiseman in the Ninth district and Harry P. Henshaw, in the Fifteenth. Returns from the senate races in the Fourth and Tenth districts were incomplete but the two Republican candidates were ahead in the Fourth while Albert G. Mathews, Democrat, was leading in the Tenth. Republican holdover senators were greatly in the majority.

Henshaw, running for re-election, was given a lead of 168 votes over Walter R. Hill, Republican, by complete returns from the Fifteenth district. Previously Hill was ahead but the complete Jefferson county vote shifted the positions of the candidates.

"CHEW OR NOT CHEW?" QUESTION

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 10. - To

That is the question facing a board of education in a rural school district in Hamilton county which has been asked to decide whether chewing of tobacco by a male teacher during classes constitutes improper conduct.

The county prosecutor in this school district has been requested by the board of education to draw up charges of improper conduct against an instructor for the al-leged offense.

CONSTANT EXPANSION

∽to serve Chevrolet owners better

INCE January 1st more than a million new Chevrolets have been delivered to owners-making the Chevrolet Motor Company, for the second consecutive year, the world's largest builder of automobiles! This outstanding achievement has been attained not only because of the quality and value of Chevrolet cars-but also because there has been a constant expansion of Chevrolet service facilities.

In order to bring the mammoth resources of the Chevrolet factories to Chevrolet dealers and owners everywhere, there have been erected 26 huge parts warehouses in the principal centers of distribution. This expansion program is continually going on-for four great additional warehouses will be in operation by January first and seven more by the summer of 1929.

Into the service departments of all Chevrolet dealers, Chevrolet has brought special tools and shop equipment-designed under the supervision of Chevrolet engineers. This equipment definitely assures maximum speed and precision and the lowest possible cost in the performance of every service and repair operation -- which are charged for on a flat rate basis.

Furthermore, all of these tremendous facilities have been made available to 15,000 authorized service stations manned by skilled mechanics - over 25,000 of whom have been factory trained to efficiently handle every repair operation on a Chevrolet car.

Uniformly efficient, uniformly reliable and within easy reach of everybody everywhere—this great service organization is assuring continued entisfaction to millions of Chevrolet owners. It is maintaining at peak efficiency the fine performance for which Chevrolet cars have always been renowned. And it is giving a new and broader significance to the world-famous Chevrolet slogan-"Quality at Low Cost."

We cordially invite you to come in and see how our service department reflects the influence of this great national service program.

Ham and eggs . . . sputtering still, full of little buttery bubbles . . . Daphne took another sip of coffee. She was hungry, terribly hungry. How good the ham and eggs looked. She watched, fascinated, while the young man cut off a pi-ce of the ham, swallowed it reached for the salt and pepper. What a lot of pepper! He'd spoil it . . . but he seemed to like it that way, he was certainly enjoying it. She sighed, and reached for a piece of bread. My, but it was nice to eat again, even dry bread. She had another slice. And another. More than her share, but the man didn't seem to care for bread, some people don't.

She watched him furtively, busy with his ham and eggs and french fried potatoes. He looked like some-body she'd seen lefore. A little wrinkle of concentra-tion gathered between her eyebrows. He was so busy eating that she could frankly stare and he didn't even

Smooth, blond haid, lighter than his tanned skin. Well chiseled, very masculine features. Long straight eyebrows. A nice boyish mouth that quirked up at the corners. He looked like . . . like . . . She studied him, trying to remember . . . a collar ad? No, not a collar ad. The man who smoked cigarettes on the billboard, half serious, half humorous

He certainly looked like that cigarette man, but the man in the cigarette ad was darker. "Well-I've seen him somewhere!" she thought. But where? Absorded in trying to remember, she took the last piece of bread, and ate it dry. The coffee was all gone.

Then, absently, with his eyes still on the paper propped beside him, the young man reached for a piece of bread. The plate was empty.

He looked at it blankly, then, with a flicker of amusement he looked across at Daphne, shrinking in her chair, growing smaller and redder every moment. She felt him looking, knew that he was laughing at her. It was no use pretending not to notice. "I'm sorry," she said in a small voice. "I didn't think. I just kept on eating. Maybe it wasn't meant for me at all—"

He continued to look at her, amused and silent, with the air of an old, shaggy dog watching a nervous kitten. When her voice trailed away he said heartily, "Why -that's all right. We'll order some more.

He saw her small, white hand trembling as its closed on the water glass, saw her red purse, so eloquently flat. He studied her a moment longer, and then he added, "And we might as well have a second cup of coffee. The second cup is free!" He grinned an understanding, big-brother sort of grin, and beckoning to the waiter, he returned to his paper.

Daphne's face was redder than the red leather purse. She didn't know what to do, or what to say. She thought of getting up and leaving but she couldn't go without her check.

When the waiter came the young man said, "Two more coffees, two more ham and eggs and plenty of bread. Rush it!"

He was still smiling when Daphne met his eyes. Hers were dark and pleading, and he smiled into them reas-suringly as he said, "And how are you going to have yours, turned over, or sunny side up?"
"Sunny side up!" She said it quickly, with a shy, half smile, and a little sigh of gratitude. Ham and eggs She was going to have some ham and eggs. She could taste them already, could see them coming in the platter, all bubbly from the range. "And thanks ever so much-for-for inviting me-"

But he looked at her so blankly and then grinned so wide' that she knew she hadn't said the right thing. Misery swept over her again, and an agony of embar-rassment. Perhaps he hadn't intended to pay for hers . . but of course he had, men who picked up girls al-

That was what she was. She looked miser ably at her hands, clenched in her lap, and fought a wild desire to put her head down on the table and cry. She was so tired, and so hungry, and a strange man was going to pay for her dinner, and she couldn't even pay him back with merriment . . . laughter . . . flattery . .

whatever they expected when they bought you dinners. She stole another look at him, and saw with relief that he was reading again. He went right on reading, even after the second order of ham and eggs came, apparently oblivious of her while she ate, timidly at first, then with increasing speed and content.

Little warm waves of happiness stole over her, a half sleepy breathlessness. It tasted so good, so wonderfully, miraculously good. As she drained the last of the coffee she met his eye and smiled, all the misery inex-plicably gone. She didn't care if she was a pickup, she had had something to est.

"Feel better?" he asked good naturedly. "Oh yes! Fver so much." He looked so nice, and she was so grateful. Her hand came stealing across the table to his. "I was really sort of sick from not eat-

"Broke?" She nodded. "I lost some money. All I have is five cents. Isn't that funny?" It was suddenly easy to laugh. "Imagine only having five cents! So I ordered coffee, and then I ate your brad-I ought to be asham ed, and I am, only it's so f-funny—"

"You poor kid!" His hand closed on her, protectingly. She found herself walking out of the restaurant with him, down Market to Sacramento Street. A cable car lurched around the curve, passed them with a clang of the motorman's bell. The car was empty, the street was deserted. Daphne stopped, her heart beginning to beat fast. "This isn't my car-I get mine on Market-"Well, come on to the garage over here and I'll drive

"No-but-" "Look here!" His face was close to hers, laughing. "Are you trying to ditch me? Afraid of me? I believe you are. Why, we're c'd friends now, what's the idea—you home. What's the matter-not in a hurry are you?"

unbappily. You can't eat and run.
"Look here!" he said again, still teasing. "We've met before. Now let me think-was it-no, not the Palace-"You do look familiar-but I don't think I've ever me you. I couldn't have, because because I haven't met anybody at all!"

"Oh yes you have!" He took her arm. Firmly. "Come along, well talk this over in the car-Daphne climbed into the roadster with a heart like "Pick-up! That's what I am-a pickup! thought, and she thought of the other girl who whizzed by in another roadster, laughing, having a wonderful time . . . if only she could be like that . . . merry . .

not caring . . . She heard herself saying, "I live way out on Geary Street. If it's too far to drive me, you could take me to the Geary car-"

"What? Trying to shake me again?"

"Oh no-just thinking it might le too far out of your way to-to-" She stopped in confusion, conscious that he was lanc'ing at her. "All right, I'll take you right home, no foolin'. Sure you don't want a little drive out to the beach first though? Another plate of ham and?" "No, honestly-I'd rather go home-some other time

"Some other time is right. Come on, tell me your name and address and telephone number-no fakes

"WINGS" CERAMIC

Only after a period of combined preparation and actual production lasting over a period of nearly twen-ty menths, "Wings," Paramount's epic of the air, was ready.

Wings," which opens a week's engagement at the Ceramic theater fondsy, was the "pet" of the Paramount studio; it was recognized as the great achievement, that would carry on fame, not only the names of Wellman and Hubbard, but also the featured players, Charles Rogers and Richard Arlen, who were associated with Clara Bow and Jobyna Ralston in the principal roles.

It is a story of the air service "done" for the first time on the screen. It was written by John Monk Saunders. himself an instructor of aviation during the war. Wellman was a member of the Lafayette Squadron and all the technical assistance came from aces of four representative nations in the world conflict.

Seven months were devoted to the filming of ground and air battle sequences at San Antonio, Texas. Au exact duplication of a sector of St. Mihiel was constructed under the supervision of those who fought at the famous original. Six thousand men were thrown into this bleak, dismal, battle-scarred area for the ground "shots." More than 200 airplanes darted and swooped overhead.

Cameramen, principals and asso-ciated pilots totaled 125 hours each in the air to obtain everything in aerial combat from "dog-fights" "straffing."

Chuck Griffith Wins Job With Buckeye Frosh

East Liverpool Youth Drills With Ohio State Yearlings.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10 .- In spite of his weight and limited football experience, Charles Griffith, of East Liverpool, is retaining his position on the freshmen grid squad at Ohio State university where he enrolled this fall. Griffith tips the scales at 160 pounds but has been used in practice many times at one of the line positions. He listed at the university as having no previous experience but has been in uniform with the squad every night since the start of the season.

In an effort to place Griffith at a position best suited for him, he has been used in the backfield berths and also at the wing positions in addition to the forward positions,

"Every Woman Who Has Ever Loved"

Every man who has ever thrilled to hazardous feats of daring will feel his blood mounting at the glorious speciacle - Every one who has hoped to see a great, stirring, a moving screen masterpiece will have his hope realized—"Wings," the air epic of the war "Aces." Daring youth. Fighting men. Tender, helpless love. The story of the men who fought the war in the air. A tribute to their gallantry, their daring, their pathetic dreams—A story of friendship such as only a great danger can cement. A story of love as full and true as only a crisis can disclose. A story of youth, its care-free daring, its unselfish sacrifice, its beautiful renunciation—A master picture made by master-craftsmen, enacted by a master cast, filmed on a master-set by master-photographers. Realism that thrills. Brave ru that stirs. Realism that awakens. Truly an epic.

MIGHTIEST SPECTACLE EVER FILMED

"WINGS"-never before such a sensation! Thundering propellers; soaring planes; gallant youth; stark courage and glorious love!

Planes! Planes! battling at the crossroads of the heavens. Zooming, diving, falling-fighting above the clouds. Youth-loving, laughing-risking all. And through it all runs the tenderest and most beautiful love story that has ever appeared on the screen.

"WINGS"—the production that has made film history.
